ABSTRACT

In keeping with the efforts of the National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE) to promote and recognize excellence in writing in the schools, this booklet presents the rankings of winning entries in the third year of NCTE's Program to Recognize Excellence in Student Literary Magazines in the United States, Canada, and American schools abroad. Following an introduction detailing the evaluation process and criteria, the magazines are listed by state or country, and subdivided by superior, excellent, or above average rankings. Those superior magazines which received the program's highest award in a second evaluation are also listed. Each entry includes the school address, student editor(s), faculty advisor, and cost of the magazine. (SRT)

Preface

The National Council of Teachers of English continually seeks ways to promote and recognize excellence in writing in the schools. We, therefore, take pleasure in presenting the third annual listing of student literary magazines which have been judged to be of high quality. This booklet cites those magazines which have been judged to be "Above Average," "Excellent," and "Superior." A select number of those ranked "Superior" have been further judged and are cited as recipients of the "Highest Award."

We salute the hundreds of student writers, chief faculty advisors, and principals for their work in producing these literary magazines. They have shown the value they place on various kinds of writing and its ultimate publication.

We also pay special tribute to the 54 State Leaders who coordinated the work of collecting and judging the magazines, the 339 judges who spent many hours carefully evaluating each magazine, and to Linda Johnson, Chair of the Advisory Committee, and those who assisted her in the careful evaluation and selection of the "Highest Award."

The publication of the booklet of all ranked magazines is NCTE's way of showing that excellence in writing in all forms is a worthy and satisfying personal goal. We commend all who took part in the program.

Nancy S. McHugh, President

John C. Maxwell, Executive Director

Sandra E. Gibbs, Director of Special Programs

The Program to Recognize Excellence is made possible by a grant from Scott, Foresman, and Company.

Introduction

As the Program to Recognize Excellence in Student Literary Magazines enters its fourth year, the Advisory Committee has sought to keep the spirit of the intent of the program's originators. Modeled after the NCTE Achievement Awards in Writing, the Program to Recognize Excellence in Student Literary Magazines gives recognition but does not offer critiques; it has no entry fee and is open to middle school, junior high, and high schools in the United States, Canada, and American schools abroad. Only student literary magazines may be entered. Districtwide magazines and other kinds of publications, e.g., newspapers, yearbooks, and magazines that contain faculty poetry and prose, are not eligible.

State Leaders administer the program in cooperation with NCTE headquarters. They assemble judging teams and arrange for every entry to be reviewed and scored by two judges working independently. The judges, who are English teachers at the middle school, high school, or college level, examine a variety of aspects of each magazine submitted, using a scoring sheet and pertinent information provided by the entering schools. The point system (total 100 points) for evaluation, described below, gives primary emphasis to literary aspects—although production values are also considered, as is the extent of student participation in production.

Literary quality (50 points)
- imaginative use of language
- appropriateness of metaphor, imagery, symbol
- choice of vivid, clear, precise words
- variety, rhythm, flow of language

Kinds of writing included (15 points)
- poetry
- fiction
- nonfiction (essays, reviews, writings from other disciplines)
- drama

Editing, proofreading (15 points)

Design/artistic aspects (15 points)
- layout
- illustrations, photography
- typography, paper stock, press work

Front matter and pagination (5 points)
- title page (title, school, city, district, state, date)
- table of contents
- staff credits

There are several descriptive categories—ranging from "Above Average" to "Highest Award"—for the magazines recognized in this booklet. Any magazine judged at the level of 71 points or more is included in the listings. A brief explanation for all of the categories of excellence is provided below.

Above Average (71–80 points)

Very sound writing; genres other than poems and short stories included; good editing; evidence of effort to embrace other subject areas; design and layout adequate; students participate in editorial, production, and business aspects.

Excellent (81–90 points)

Extremely high quality of writing; variety of genre; meticulous editing; some writings from other subject areas; design and graphics attractive, pertinent to writings; students have strong roles in editorial, production, and business aspects.

Superior (91–100 points)

Outstanding writing; wide variety of genre; excellent editing; high-quality design and graphics, appropriate to themes of writings; clear evidence of interdepartmental and interdisciplinary involvement with good writings from other subject areas; students dominate editorial, production, and business aspects.

Highest Award

This special award, selected from the superior-ranked journals, recognizes magazines that fulfill extraordinary standards of excellence. In such magazines, students handle virtually all aspects of writing, production, and business with exceptional skill. The magazine is characterized by variety of genre; highly original and technically excellent writing; attractive layout, typesetting, and graphics; inclusion of high-quality writings from various disciplines; and other evidence that schoolwide participation has gone into the development of the magazine.

As the program grows, the Advisory Committee continues to refine it. In 1986, 1,052 schools submitted entries; of those 11 received the highest award; 249, superior; 469, excellent; and 242, above average.

We are pleased with your response and encourage you to continue to participate in the Program to Recognize Excellence in Student Literary Magazines.
